

Tellurium Q

Statement cable system

Reviewed in Issue 166

I also love the dynamics that Statement delivers, even compared to similarly beefy cables this produces the power and drama of an orchestra in full effect."

Tellurium Q's Statement range is the ultimate product range in the cable company's line-up. And that's about the only 'statement' you can make about this group of chunky power, signal, and loudspeaker conduits, because the company steadfastly avoids telling people about the topology or materials of Tellurium Q cables. Part of the reason for this is to avoid copying and cloning, and part because the company feels the obsession with materials can cloud people's judgment; using bright silver-plated conductors, for example, doesn't make a cable sound 'bright'!

Regardless of what's inside Tellurium Q's Statement, what it does when connected to audio electronics impressed Jason Kennedy, praising the cable group's "excellent timing and coherence". He continued by saying, "I also love the dynamics that Statement delivers, even compared to similarly beefy cables this produces the power and drama of an orchestra in full effect," but added, "At the other end of the scale, the quieter end, this cable is exceptionally good at pulling out the details that make a singer or instrument palpably real." He summed up the cable by saying, "The only way to find out is to listen for yourself. But beware; once you hear what Tellurium Q is capable of you won't forget the experience in a hurry. You have been warned!" +